SUBJECT: Application to include women's boxing in the 2012 Olympic Games

Dear Colleagues,

I would like to inform you that that the AIBA head office officially submitted to the IOC its application to include women's boxing in the 2012 Olympic Games.

The AIBA application outlines the strengths of women's boxing and illustrates the key points behind why women's boxing should be included in the Olympic Games.

The Olympic Programme Commission will now review the application before making a recommendation to the IOC Executive Board, which will make a decision. With the momentum behind women's boxing gathering great speed I look forward to having your full support and participation on our united effort to make this dream be realized.

It is the IOC who will make a decision at its Executive Board meeting at the end of 2009 and whatever the result, we know that the IOC will be acting in the best interests of boxing.

We will continue updating you on the progress.

Yours truly,
